Prof. Vaishali S. Ingale is an Assistant Professor of Information Technology at the Army Institute of Technology (AIT), Pune. She has taught at AIT since July 2005.

Research interests: machine learning · deep learning for satellite and medical images · natural language processing · information security

Currently: Faculty In-Charge, AIT Open Source Software Club · Vice Branch Counsellor, IEEE AIT Student Branch

Research

Applied machine learning, much of it co-authored with AIT students and colleagues.

- Satellite images: maps, cloud masking, terrain features
- Medical images: diabetic retinopathy grading with GNNs
- Language: machine reading comprehension
- Security: cyberattack prediction, cryptography, steganography

Teaching

- 10 university textbooks on AI and data structures (Nirali Prakashan, 2008–2022)
- SPPU resource person: ML labs (2021), DL labs (2022)
- Best Teacher Award (2011–12); Best Result Award, Design and Analysis of Algorithms (2014–15); Paper Presenter Award, CSI Annual Convention 2020

Leadership and service

- Conference Chair, ICNDIA-2026, the first edition of ICNDIA, an IEEE international conference hosted at AIT: 1,500+ submissions, 217 papers presented
- Faculty In-Charge, OSS Club and Innervive hackathon (9,500+ students, 2025)
- Mentor of both AIT first-prize teams, Smart India Hackathon 2024

Education

- M.E., Computer Engineering, Pune University, 2008
- B.E., Computer Science and Engineering, SRTM University, 2002
